Yeah Yeah

I THINK WE PRETTY MUCH MAKE UP THE PERFECT GROUP.

Y'KNOW... I FELT LIKE IT WAS REALLY FUN.

YEAH,

IT WAS SO MUCH FUN.

OH, HANG ON!

THAT NOT ALL OF THEM.

SO WHAT DO WE DO ABOUT THE ONES WE WANT?

WELL, SOMETHING LIKE THAT.

SO YOU WERE JUST PRETENDING TO SLEEP, RIGHT?

AH! YOU'RE RIGHT! OH WOW!

I LEFT THE CAMERA ON THE WINDOW SILL AND PUT IT ON SELF-TIMER MODE.

EVERYONE'S IN IT! HOW DID YOU TAKE IT?

LET'S GO THERE AGAIN!

THIS YEAR'S REALLY CAPTURED OUR YOUTH!

HEY, WHAT THE HECK!

Hehe♡

...BY THE WAY. IF YOU LOOK AT IT LIKE THIS, YOU CAN TELL WHO'S AN IDIOT FROM HOW THEY'RE SLEEPING.

We asked Onoda-san: How long did you believe in Santa?

Onoda: Oh, you are one of those. There are plenty of them, aren't there? You probably want to hear the usual story in which I say, 'Santa was actually my daddy!', right? I'm not very knowledgeable about Santa and how he does things, but even with his powers it seems pretty much impossible that he would be able to give every child on Earth presents in one night. That's why it's more likely that Santa asks the dads of families whose kids weren't chosen as the few best to deliver his presents for him.

So the ones who ask this sort of question are most likely the ones Santa didn't choose...

Oh, but it's not like they are inferior or anything. I won't discriminate against them.

What? Me?

Yes, Santa comes to my place.

Well, it's written on the presents every year.

It says 'From Santa'.
